One page. One action.

The order of sections for a launch page, with a prompt to give Claude Code for each. Order is a decision, so don't let the model make it for you.

---

01 Hero

Who it's for and what they get, in one headline.

PROMPT `Write three headline options for [who] who want [outcome]. Plain words, no hype, under 10 words each.`

02 Proof

Something real that shows you can do it. Only real work and facts you can verify. No proof yet? Show your process or a sample you made.

PROMPT `Turn these facts into three short proof points. Do not add numbers I didn't give you: [facts]`

03 How it works

Three steps a stranger understands.

PROMPT `Explain how [offer] works in three steps. One sentence each, no jargon.`

04 Offer

What's included, the price, and what happens next.

PROMPT `Write the offer block from this and nothing else: what's included, price, timeline: [details]`

05 FAQ

The questions a hesitant buyer asks: price, timing, "is this for me?"

PROMPT `List the five questions a hesitant buyer would ask and answer them using only these facts: [facts]`

06 Call to action

Repeat the one action. Nothing new.

PROMPT `Write the closing call to action for [the one action]. One sentence and one button label.`